We're on a Mission

Most people think we're losing our forests, but total forestland is actually increasing while young forests, those necessary for ruffed grouse and American woodcock, are significantly decreasing.

As the forests mature, young forest habitat disappears. It's young forests, with important cover and food sources, that provide the essential habitat for grouse, woodcock, deer, rabbits and numerous species of migratory song birds.

For over 50 years, the Ruffed Grouse Society has created healthy forest habitat for ruffed grouse, American woodcock and other forest wildlife. RGS biologists work with landowners and government agencies to develop this critical habitat utilizing selective cutting, planting and other strategic management practices.

The Red Brush Chapter of the Ruffed Grouse Society's dedicated to supporting RGS projects in Pennsylvania.

About Scott...

Scott Sipple was an avid sportsman who displayed unparalleled generosity and was a great friend to many, many people. He gave his time unselfishly to support various organizations, whether it be the Centre County Youth Services Bureau, the NRA, the Pennsylvania Rifle and Pistol Association, the Ruffed Grouse Society or when he would go to Juniper Village, where his father is a resident, to lend a hand and spread kindness to all the residents he came into contact with. He was always the first person to offer help to anyone who needed it and, incredibly, maintained close relationships with hundreds of people from all walks of life. He had a particular love for bird hunting and worked tirelessly to help the Ruffed Grouse Society raise money and hold a successful banquet every year in support of their efforts.

This event is being held to help a cause that was close to Scott's heart but more importantly as a way for his friends from all aspects of his life to get together and celebrate the memory of a kind hearted, loving friend and gentle giant who left our lives way too soon.
